

ROSLISTON FARM VISITORS CENTRE

South
Derbyshire
District Council

OUR CLIENT

This scheme was undertaken for South Derbyshire District Council as part of their regeneration plans.

THE PROJECT

Rosliston Farm Forestry Centre is located near Swadlincote in Derbyshire and consists of young woodland, meadows, gardens and ponds in the National Forest. The brief was to create a visitors centre to allow the area to create more visitors and allow for specific events.

THE CHALLENGE

The site includes play and picnic areas, along with the Hub Café offering panoramic views of the site, along with an outdoor seating area.

The scheme involved alterations and conversions to existing structures to create additional facilities for visitors and to improve upon the existing structures.

The visitors centre included the creation of heated retail space and reception area. The play barn and youth centre areas were both insulated, to provide comfortable accommodation.

The disabled access for the site was improved and shelter was erected over walkways to make the centre more comfortable in all weathers.
